Which Bali visa fits you?

Most visitors use the 30-day visa on arrival. Staying longer, or working remotely, needs a different visa. Pick your row below.

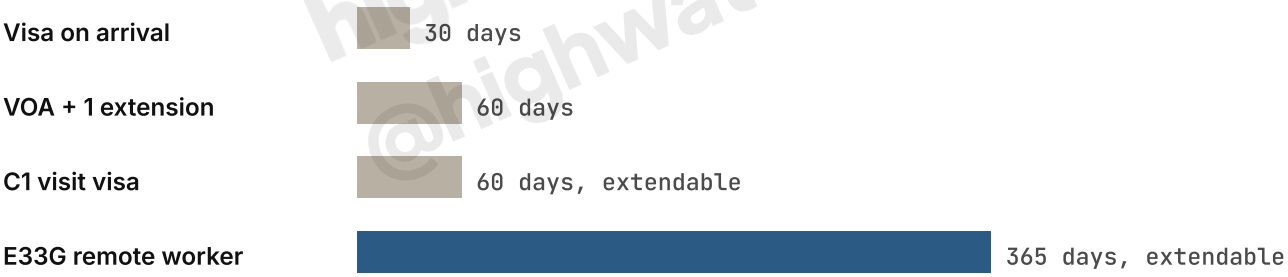
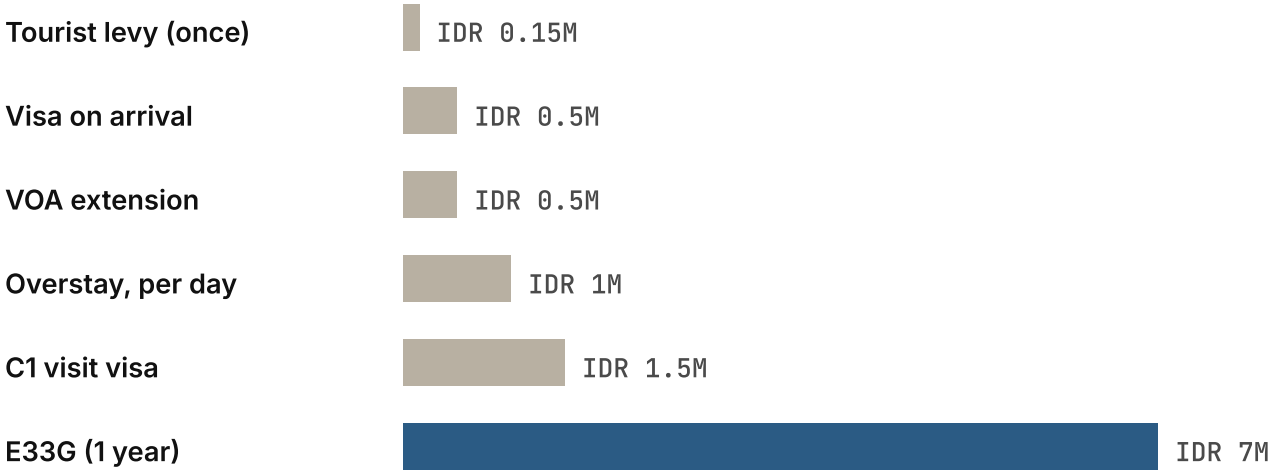
2. How long can you stay?



Maximum stay by visa, in days. Extensions are applied for inside Indonesia, before your visa ends. Check whether your nationality is eligible for each visa on evisa.imigrasi.go.id.

3. What does it cost?



Government fees in millions of Indonesian rupiah. IDR 1M is about $56 at the 8 October 2026 rate of roughly IDR 17,900 per dollar. Agent fees are extra.

The options in plain English

Visa on arrival

IDR 500,000 · 30 days

Buy it at the airport, or apply online before you fly (the e-VOA, at the same price). You need a passport valid for 6+ months with 2 blank pages, and proof you are leaving. Extend it once for another IDR 500,000 and 30 days, for 60 in total. You can start 14 days before it ends, and you must finish before it does. After you pay online, you visit an immigration office to have your photo taken.

C1 visit visa

IDR 1.5M · 60 days

For tourists who want about two months. Apply online before you fly, allow about 5 working days, and enter within 90 days of approval. You show a photo and a bank statement with about $2,000. It can be extended before it ends, and the portal shows the exact fee before you pay.

E33G Remote Worker visa

IDR 7M · 1 year

For people employed by a company outside Indonesia. You show income of at least $60,000 a year, a bank statement with about $2,000, and a contract with your employer. You cannot earn money from Indonesian sources on it. The immigration site says it can be extended online from inside Indonesia.

Bali tourist levy

IDR 150,000 · once

A separate charge for every foreign visitor, paid once per trip. Pay online at lovebali.baliprov.go.id before you fly, or at the airport. Keep your payment confirmation.

Before you fly

All Indonesia arrival card. Free, and required for international arrivals. Fill it in online up to 3 days before you land, and save the QR code. Use only the official site; never pay anyone to do it.

Passport and ticket. At least 6 months left, 2 blank pages, and proof you are leaving Indonesia.

Bali levy. Pay the IDR 150,000 levy and keep your payment confirmation handy.

Common mistakes

Working on a tourist visa. UK government advice says the visa on arrival does not cover influencer work or creating commercial online content. Get the right visa first.

Overstaying. It costs IDR 1,000,000 per day and can lead to detention or deportation. Set a reminder for day 16, when you can start the extension.

Paying an agent the official fee. Agents charge their own fees on top of the government price. That is fine if you want the help, but know the difference.

Ignoring tax. Staying more than 183 days in any 12-month period can make you an Indonesian tax resident. A long-stay visa valid for more than 183 days counts as evidence you plan to stay. Ask an adviser before you settle in.
